

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method is disclosed wherein weakened zones are provided in plastic trim parts in the form of cuts produced by means of an ultra sound cutting method, and wherein the cuts can be made suitably narrow and extending through the thickness of a multilayered plastic trim part in a manner that the cuts are without jagged edges and remain invisible on the visible side even when the cut extends through a decorative layer of the multilayered plastic part even after long term storage under heat.